Section C: Certification of funds

Cornell University requires all international students, regardless of visa type, to provide financial documents proving they have funding for the first year of their program in liquid assets. Students with dependents accompanying them to the U.S. must also provide certification of additional funding support.

Source of Funding	Amount Available	Bank or Institution Name
Personal Fund	$
Family Funds	$
Cornell*	$
Organization	$

*Students should not assume any financial support from Cornell unless it was included in an admission offer or award notification.

Please attach account statements for each funding source to this form. Statements must be in English and include your name or sponsor's name, bank name, date, and amount available in U.S. dollars. Acceptable documents include bank certification letters, bank statements for checking and savings accounts.

By signing below you understand that you (the student) are ultimately responsible for paying all tuition and fees associated with your degree program by the posted University deadlines. Failure to pay your obligations will result in you being withdrawn from your degree program. Students must maintain a registered status to comply with U.S. immigration laws.
